A PETITION.

HOW ALL PILOTS MAY KNOW THE RIVER-THE SUGGESTION OF A PRACTICABLE PLAN-CAPT, SCOTT TO THE RESCUE.

The following is the text of a petition being circulated by the author, Chas. M. Scott, an old pilot and boatman, now in this city. Mr. Scott claims in favor of the petition that it is based on the laws of navigation in existence all over the civilized world, that require all navigators to keep a log in which all dangerous obstacles and all changes of channel are accurately noted down, and when the navigator arrives at any port, to give to the proper officer a transcript from his log, by which means dangers are immediately made known to all interested. Scott also claims that the navigation of our rivers is of as ocean, and that all those interested in river navigation should be required, as by his plan they would be, to furnish to each other all the information they may have or obtain that will contribute to making the navigation of rivers less dangerous if not safe. The petition is as follows:

To the Board of United States Supervising Inspec-

We, you petitioners, steamboat owners, captains, pilots and others, all deeply interested in the navigation of the western and southern rivers of the United States, would respectfully ask of your honorable body to amend the rules governing pilots We believe that the constant changes in our western rivers require that those navigating them should be informed of all such changes as much as possible, and, that, if a rule of this kind is adopted and rigidly enforced, it will do more to secure life property than anything else that could be done. A rule of this kind has already been adopted by several associations, but it has worked injury to commerce by enabling the members to combine and extert from owners exorbitant salaries, which exorbitant rates have a direct tendency to destroy commerce; and the license system serves only to protect their monopoly but does not make better pilots. We believe this rule will remove all objectionable features in the law as farjas pilots are concerned | cines. and make it as perfect as human foresight can make it:

It shall be the duty of the local inspecors of all districts on the interior waters of the United States to cause boxes of a suitable size, with locks on them, to be put up at convenient places along the river for the use of all pilots; say-
